

To Read...

T.S. Elliot: "The Love Song of J Alfred Prufrock"

Blake: Songs of Innocence and Experience

e e cummings: any and all

Wordsworth: any and all

Coleridge: any and all

Beowulf: selections

Gardner: Grendel

John Donne: any and all

Marlowe and Raleigh: Shepherd poems (carpe diem tradition)

Andrew Marvell: "To His Coy Mistress"

Robert Herrick: "To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time"

Alexander Pope: Essays; Epigrams

Keats: any and all

Byron: any and all

Tennyson: "Ulysses," "The Lady of Shalott"

Robert Browning: "My Last Duchess," "Porphyria's Lover"

Arnold: "Dover Beach"

Hopkins: "Spring and Fall: To a Young Child"

Yeats: any and all

Joyce: The Dead, Araby

WWI Poets

Heaney: "Digging"

Wallace Stevens: any and all

Oates: any and all

Flannery O'Connor: any and all

Hemingway: any and all

Fitzgerald: any and all

William Carlos Williams: any and all

Knowles: Under the Volcano

Nabokov: Lolita

Bohumil Hrabal: I served the King of England, Closely Watched Trains, Too Loud a Solitude, Dancing Lessons for the Aged and Impaired

Other titles: My war Gone By, I Miss It So, We Regret to Inform You...

I will continue to give you more as I think of them. If you can, read an intro to each author.